

David Gelfman: Director

David Gelfman has been on the Land Conservancy since 2010. A life long Ridgefield resident, David became interested in land conservation and the natural environment following his father around on Planning and Zoning walks as a child. David has spent a considerable amount of time exploring much of Ridgefield's wetter and wilder areas in pursuit of reptiles and amphibians. A member of the Fundraising committee, David has endeavored to promote charitable contributions to the conservancy. David spends about six months a year running a commercial fishing boat and the rest of the year as a metal sculptor.
